

What is Connexis membership?

Membership of Connexis is open to infrastructure companies, organisations and associations. Their annual subscriptions help to fund Connexis's objective to provide effective training to the industry.

By becoming a member of Connexis, you will be contributing to the development of a skilled, industry workforce. You will also help to make sure that the industry has access to Connexis's services.

How do you become a member?

Simply complete the Connexis Membership Application Form and return it to:
Board Secretary, Connexis, PO Box 1245, Hamilton 3240

You may become an Connexis member at any time during the year. Your membership fee will cover the financial year in which you apply. (Connexis's financial year is 1 January to 31 December.)

Full Membership

All infrastructure companies in New Zealand may apply for full membership. Infrastructure companies include:

- Generation, transmission and distribution network asset owners
- Enterprises contracting to those asset owners for the installation, operation and maintenance of industry assets
- Electricity retailers
- Consultants to the industry, including companies and organisations which represent groupings of enterprises within the industry;
- The employees of enterprises, retailers, consultants and organisations that contract to asset owners.

Associate Membership

Non-infrastructure companies, organisations or individuals may apply for Associate Membership.

Membership Fee Structure 2017

The fee for Full or Associate Membership of Connexis is $200 plus GST per year.

Connexis Member Companies

Connexis members are companies that are part of New Zealand's electricity supply industry. Their subscriptions help us provide effective training and services to the industry. Our current members are listed below.

If you are looking for work opportunities in the electricity supply industry, please link to our member company's websites and view their careers or situations vacant pages.
