

TRANSMISSION TRAINEE OF THE YEAR

7 reasons why you should nominate your employee:

1. Recognise a standout employee and the value they bring to your organisation.
2. Raise your profile as an employer who promotes training and best practice.
3. Celebrate your company's achievements.
4. Show your commitment to the professional development of your industry.
5. Promote your industry by showcasing talent on a national stage.
6. Take an active role in this celebration of the Electricity Supply and Telecommunication Industry.
7. Give your employees the chance to win and be part of the legacy of Annual Connection.

Eligibility

To be eligible for nomination, the nominee must be:

- Employed in the Electricity Supply Industry in a transmission role; and
- Working toward, or recently completed, a national qualification at Level 3 or 4 under a Connexis Training Agreement. (People who completed their national qualification prior to 1 July 2021 are not eligible).

What makes a great nominee?

The Judges will be looking for an elevated level of excellence during the nominee's training, proof of a positive attitude, dedication to learning, and evidence the nominee is a role model to their peers.

The key to a strong nomination is providing the judges with clear, relevant information, and specific examples that give them a positive, factual picture of your nominee and their accomplishments.

The winner of the Transmission Trainee of the Year Award will receive a prize of $750.00 a trophy and a certificate. They will also be considered for the Overall Trainee of the Year Award.
